With accident legal, there are better days ahead.

If an injury or illness is impacting your ability to work, we are here to help you with your TPD claim

If you are unable to work due to injury or illness you may be entitled to a Total and Permanent Disability (TPD) insurance benefit through your superannuation. This is a lump sum insurance payout that:

- doesn't affect your superannuation balance
- can fund current and future medical costs
- provides you with financial support to restore your quality of life.

We can check your TPD insurance entitlements on your behalf, and we will work with you to ensure you receive your full benefit.

Disability super claims may involve income protection, trauma insurance, total and temporary disability (TTD), or total and permanent disability (TPD) claims.

Our expert team of TTD and TPD lawyers will guide you through the TPD benefit claims process to optimise your outcomes as quickly as possible.

When you call us, you will speak directly with the senior lawyer or partner handling your case. You will be given their direct line so that you can speak with them at any time.

No win, no fee

We understand that you've got enough on your plate without worrying about finding money for legal fees. We take care of all of that for you with our no win, no fee guarantee.

The accident legal no disbursement loan promise

Many other personal injury law firms will require you to enter into a disbursement loan agreement with a financier to fund expenses in your matter, such as medical records, medical reports and barrister's fees. These financiers charge very high interest rates on these disbursement loans and never tell you the exact dollar amount of interest they will charge until you have settled or are about to settle your matter. With the accident legal no disbursement loan promise:

- we will never ask you to sign a disbursement loan at any time
- we pay every single disbursement on your behalf upfront
- we recoup expenses from the settlement funds when the insurer pays
- you are never required to pay anything until your claim is finalised
- we don't charge you any interest on the disbursements we pay on your behalf. That's right, no interest, absolutely nothing.

In most matters, the interest charged by financiers on disbursement loans adds up to thousands of dollars. The accident legal no disbursement loan promise ensures more money from your settlement goes to you rather than a financier.

Direct access to our senior lawyers

We are different from many other law firms because we ensure that you receive the highest quality advice throughout your matter by giving you direct access to our senior lawyers.

Our ultimate goal is to maximise your compensation, and we pride ourselves on achieving this for our clients in each and every case.

We genuinely care about you and we will ensure that you obtain the maximum compensation as quickly as possible. When you call us, you won't speak to a secretary or paralegal, you will speak directly with the senior lawyer handling your case. Our legal fees are affordable and fair.

FAQs

How do I know if I have TPD Insurance?

It's quite common that people aren't completely sure of their TPD coverage. To confirm you can either check your super statement(s) or provide those statements to us and we can check for you. If you don't have a super statement handy, we're happy to contact your super fund, with your permission, to get one and work through it with you.

What if I'm at fault?

Under your superannuation policy, it doesn't matter if you are at fault. All that matters is that you meet the relevant definitions. These policies are often difficult to read and understand. We have TPD and superannuation legal experts that can obtain your policy and provide you advice about your entitlements for free, subject to our no-win-no-fee guarantee.

What can I claim?

Most policies contain cover for:

- Income protection: payment of your pre-accident income if you can't work because of your injury, illness or disability. There is often a 30, 60, or 90-day waiting period before you can claim, meaning that you must not have worked for 30, 60, 90 days since you sustained your injury or disability or became ill.
- Total and Permanent Disablement: payment of a significant lump sum if you are unlikely to ever work again because of your injury, illness or disability.

To find out what you can claim, contact us to speak to one of our superannuation and TPD experts.

How long will my claim take?

Your claim can take anywhere from 3 months to 3 years. This is because on some occasions, we can have your insurer pay to you benefits a short time after we lodge your claim. On other occasions the insurer will refuse to pay you benefits, and we will need to fight for you to force them to pay, which may include commencing court proceedings.

Can I make a claim?

Most likely, yes. Most super policies have default cover within the policy. The value and validity of your TPD claim will, of course, depend on your specific policy, as decided by the insurer or super fund in question. Whilst the policy criteria vary between super funds, some common requirements for making a TPD claim include:

- Your super fund – checking what level of cover is provided in your superannuation policy.
- Your injury or level of disability – it's likely you will have to show you are suffering a minimum level of disability. This often considers your ability to return to your previous role, or to work at all.
- Waiting periods – most policies will require a waiting period to allow injuries and symptoms to stabilise. This is a juggling act as there can be time limits for bringing a claim. Contact us and we can help guide you on the best course of action.
- Your employment history – some policies require a minimum level of employment before you become eligible to claim a TPD payout. This is something our experts can check and advise you on.

But I don't remember taking out a policy. Can I still claim?

Most likely, yes. If you were employed at the time of your accident or when you became ill, the fund that your employer paid your compulsory superannuation will have default cover for you under your policy.

These policies are often difficult to read and understand. We have TPD and superannuation legal experts that can obtain your policy and provide you advice about your entitlements for free, subject to our no-win, no-fee guarantee.

Are there time limits in bringing a claim?

There can be. Contact us immediately to see whether you are still within time for making a claim.

Do I need to pay a fee?

You don't pay us a cent unless we win your case and you are paid compensation.
